Children meeting the objective would be able to draw conclusions describing what their results showed and use their scientific knowledge to explain this. In this context they would link their observations to factors affecting change of state.

Example from Meadowbrook Primary School, South Gloucestershire